Mr. Speaker:

In the spirit of Section 286 of The Election Act, 1996 I am honoured to submit Volume III in A Report on the Twenty-Eighth General Election.

This volume provides insights on the financial costs of administering Saskatchewan's Twenty-Eighth provincial general election. This includes reimbursement expenses provided to eligible registered political parties and candidates.

Respectfully submitted,

CHAPTER ONE

REPORTING ON THE GENERAL ELECTION: FOUR VOLUMES

The period leading to Saskatchewan's 28th General Election, held on April 4, 2016, was one of transition for both the statutory Office of the Chief Electoral Officer and Elections Saskatchewan, the provincial election management body that supports this office. Both continued a process of reassessment and renewal that had begun in 2009. Both continued to carefully consider what it means to administer free and fair elections in the context of Saskatchewan.

In 2009, the Saskatchewan Legislative Assembly had commissioned a review¹ of the organizational structure and operational environment of the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer, leading to the appointment of Dr. Michael Boda as the province's Chief Electoral Officer and head of Elections Saskatchewan on June 1, 2012.

In the months following this appointment, Dr. Boda consulted with key stakeholders within the province, a process that led to describing a "path for renewal"² – the approach by which the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer would alter its management methods, restructure its staff, and evolve the institution's operation to be consistent with electoral best practice in Canada and in leading democratic jurisdictions around the world. This path would include three key tenets for organizational renewal:

- Professionalizing Saskatchewan's election management body;
- Improving the delivery of provincial electoral events; and
- Placing greater focus on democratic stewardship in the province.

² Michael D. Boda, Election Administration in Saskatchewan: 'A Path for Renewal' (Estimates for Fiscal Year 2013-2014) (Regina: Elections Saskatchewan, 2013).

Once the team that would lead Elections Saskatchewan into the 28th General Election was established, the organization undertook strategic planning for the years 2014-2016³ to determine how the three key tenets could be transformed into a set of goals and strategic objectives that would lead to a successful general election and a much-strengthened election management body.

Elections Saskatchewan's leadership team reflected on the values found in election management bodies across the country and throughout the world. Six core values were identified and their adoption helped guide the organization through the province's 28th electoral cycle and general election:

- Independence;
- Accountability;
- Impartiality;
- Innovation; and
- Professionalism;
- Service Orientation

The story of Saskatchewan's 28th General Election, held on April 4, 2016, will be told over the course of four volumes, each providing different kinds of insight into the overall success and challenges involved in planning for, organizing and implementing the province's largest ever event. Together, these will constitute A Report on the Twenty-Eighth General Election.

- Volume I – Statement of Votes (published in January 2017) was designed to provide data surrounding the public's participation in the 2016 electoral event. It collated information with the intent of providing a richer understanding of voting trends in the province. Information on candidates, registered political parties, and historical data was also included;
- Volume II – Administrative Review (published November 2017) offered a firmer grasp of the manner by which the 2016 general election was conducted. The volume looked at two sides of the electoral event. On the one hand, it focused on how the electoral event was conducted based on an assessment of election administrator colleagues from across the country who were in Saskatchewan during the election period to evaluate the process. On the other, the volume looked at stakeholder perceptions of the implementation of the general election, drawing conclusions from surveys, focus groups, interviews and other sources of data;

- Volume III – Statement of Expenditures (the current volume) addresses another important component of the 2016 electoral event, one of capturing the overall costs related to the 2016 electoral event. While not often understood, such costs continue to be accumulated well after election day and the final results of the election are reported. This volume provides insight on spending in two key areas, including spending related to reimbursements given to Saskatchewan's eligible registered political parties and eligible candidates, all of which is outlined within The Election Act, 1996. In addition, it provides figures related to the cost of administering the 2016 general election in 61 constituencies across the province; and, finally;
- Volume IV – Chief Electoral Officer's Recommendations for Legislative Reform will take into account what has been learned over the course of the 28th electoral cycle in order to position the province — its voters, political parties and candidates and its provincial election management body — to conduct the 29th General Election. It will be published following a thorough review and assessment of how the 28th General Election was conducted in light of electoral best practice and changes being observed across the country. This volume will offer the Chief Electoral Officer's recommendation on how the Election Act should be changed to more effectively serve electoral stakeholders across the province.

While the publication of this report in four volumes will fulfil the Chief Electoral Officer's statutory duty outlined in Section 286 of The Election Act 1996, its intent goes well beyond this. Saskatchewan has demonstrated a competence in governance since its founding in 1905. Around the globe, the province and its partners in Confederation are categorized among the world's most successful democracies. The hope is that the information offered in this report will lead to a heightened awareness of the state of democracy in Saskatchewan by placing a microscope on one facet of it — a general election. The report aims specifically at providing a variety of tools that can encourage the residents of Saskatchewan to reflect on how the democratic traditions they cherish can be fine-tuned and improved for the future.

ELECTION EXPENSE OVERVIEW

Maintaining the integrity of its electoral system is a central concern for every representative democracy. Public confidence in the institution of government, founded on the principle that elected officials represent the will of citizens, depends on an electoral system that operates efficiently, reliably, impartially, and one that provides public access to the power of the ballot box at regular intervals.

Following each provincial election, section 286 of The Election Act, 1996 (the Act) requires the Chief Electoral Officer of Saskatchewan to prepare and submit a report summarizing the financial returns of each candidate and political party. Electoral best practice requires that such a report should also include information related to the overall cost of administering the election.

This chapter provides for readers a summary of all the costs of planning, preparing and administering Saskatchewan's 28th Provincial General Election. Detailed administrative cost breakdowns, including constituency-by-constituency costs, are found in later chapters. A brief overview of the expense limits, filing requirements and public reimbursements available for registered political parties, candidates and their auditors is also included in this chapter, while later chapters provide more detailed information in this regard as well.

Breaking Down the Overall Costs of a General Election: A New Approach

Most election management bodies operate on a four-year cycle with a general election occurring in the fourth year. This is significantly different than for most other public institutions, which operate on annual budget cycles.

Saskatchewan's 27th general election was held on November 7, 2011. In the years between Saskatchewan's 27th and 28th general election, held on April 4, 2016, Elections Saskatchewan, the institution legally responsible for administering provincial electoral events, underwent substantial and fundamental change.

The impetus for these changes was the 2009 Hamilton report referenced in the previous chapter. This report, commissioned by the Legislative Assembly's Board of Internal Economy, noted, "There is an urgent need to break the cycle of repeated underfunding [of Elections Saskatchewan] and to recognize the role of leadership in the organization." Elections Saskatchewan had delivered several elections with a core staff much smaller than that found in comparable jurisdictions across the country. The Hamilton Report concluded there was a "need to improve on the delivery of electoral events" in the province and made a series of recommendations that would facilitate such improvement.

These recommendations included a call for a significant increase in staffing and a renewed focus on implementing electoral best practice in all aspects of the administration of elections. A new Chief Electoral Officer, Dr. Michael Boda, was recruited in 2012 and he articulated a "path for renewal" during his first year in office. That path required the organization to significantly alter its management approach, restructure and expand staffing, and evolve the institution's operations to be consistent with electoral best practice in Canada and leading democratic jurisdictions around the world.

Elections Saskatchewan incurred expenditures of $23,259,933 in planning, preparing and delivering all aspects of the province's 28th general election. This figure includes expenses from four fiscal years, 2013-14 through 2016-17, an amount inclusive of all event-related head office costs, field expenses, as well as expense reimbursements made to political parties, candidates and their financial auditors.

A common way of describing the cost of an election has been to express it in terms of cost per registered voter. In its report on the Twenty-Seventh General Election, held on November 7, 2011, Elections Saskatchewan reported a cost per voter of $24.63.⁴ Completing the same calculation for this most recent general election (total cost of $23,259,933 divided by 764,264 registered voters) results in a cost per voter of $30.43 – an increase of 23.6 percent. A number of factors contributed to this increase, important among them are the change in methodology to account for election costs over the entire four-year cycle, a legislatively-driven delay in the election date, and an increase in the number of provincial constituencies. More detail on these and other costs are offered below.

The 28th General Election marks the first instance where Elections Saskatchewan has tracked event-related expenses through all four years of an electoral cycle, a practice that provides a more accurate and complete disclosure of the full costs of administering a provincial election. Election costs reported for previous provincial elections in the province were associated with only those costs that were incurred once election period activities began. The changed accounting method provides greater transparency regarding the significant expenditures that are associated with each provincial election, and sets a baseline for future election cost comparisons. This new approach is considered an international best practice in election cost accounting.

The annual reports of Elections Saskatchewan, which are filed with the Legislative Assembly following the conclusion of each fiscal year, include independently audited and fully detailed financial statements regarding each fiscal year's ongoing administrative and event-related budget appropriations, and the actual expenses that were incurred within each of these two major categories. The election expenses presented in this report are an extracted amalgamation of the event-related expenses that have been previously disclosed in Elections Saskatchewan's four annual reports that cover the 2014 – 2017 period.

"The 28th General Election marks the first instance where Elections Saskatchewan has tracked event-related expenses through all four years of an electoral cycle, a practice that provides a more accurate and complete disclosure of the full costs of administering a provincial election. 2013-14 to 2016-17 Year Over Year Election Spending

The costs per fiscal year incurred in the planning, preparations and delivery of Saskatchewan's 28th provincial general election are presented in the chart above and table below. Election expenditures commenced in FY2013-14 (the first year of the electoral cycle) and concluded in FY2016-17 (the final year of the cycle).

Year	Cost
2013-14	$ 630,505
2014-15	$ 1,173,222
2015-16	$ 12,188,213
2016-17	$ 9,267,993
Total	$ 23,259,933

Spending on the 28th general election peaked in fiscal year (FY) 2015-16, even though election day, April 4, 2016, was in FY2016-17.

One reason for this was the writ period for the election stretched over two fiscal years – FY2015-16 and FY2016-17. The writs of election were issued on March 8, 2016 and they were returned to the Chief Electoral Officer on April 27, 2016. This meant that many key activities, including the nomination deadline for candidates, the close of voter registration, and three days of advance voting occurred during FY2015-16. The final two days of advance voting as well as election day, the final count, return of the writs, the closure of the returning offices, and the post-review reimbursement of election expenditures to political parties, candidates and auditors all occurred in FY2016-17.

Another reason spending peaked in FY2015-16 was that Elections Saskatchewan had spent most the electoral cycle preparing for a general election that was originally scheduled to be held five months earlier, in the fall of 2015.

Section 8.1 of The Legislative Assembly Act, 2007 states that, in Saskatchewan, a provincial general election "must be held on the first Monday of November in the fourth calendar year after the last general election." Saskatchewan's 27th General Election was held on November 7, 2011, which set the statutory date for the 28th election as November 2, 2015.

Saskatchewan's 28th general election

However, the same section of legislation also states: “If the writ period for a general election...overlaps with the writ period for a general election to be held pursuant to...the Canada Elections Act, the general election must be held on the first Monday of April in the calendar year following.”

On August 2, 2015, writs were issued for a federal election to be held on October 19. The federal election call had been legislatively scheduled, but by legislation, Elections Saskatchewan was mandated to prepare for a November 2015 election date in the event the scheduled federal election was called early (as had happened twice before) or delayed. With the early August announcement, and confirmation that the legislative provision for a five-month provincial election delay needed to take effect, Elections Saskatchewan began executing contingency plans to modify and reschedule its election preparation activities.

A considerable amount of work, especially in the 61 constituencies around Saskatchewan, needed to be redone. Returning officers, who had spent time looking for polling locations and potential returning office spaces needed to redo much of this work, as many of the locations that were available for a November election were not available five months later. The timing of key election event training sessions needed to be rescheduled as well. In some cases, new Field Leadership Team members needed to be recruited as some members were unable to commit to the delayed election timetable.

This was also the first election contested under new provincial constituency boundaries, with an increase in the number of constituencies to 61 from the previous 58, and modification to the boundaries of every constituency in the southern half of the province. The additional constituencies had an impact on costs in areas such as Field Administration, Returning Office staff costs and Poll Official costs, which are further described in the following section.

The costs related to the general election can be broken down into a handful of broad categories. These are:

- Central Administration ($11,641,850)
- Poll Officials ($2,805,033)
- Returning Office staff ($2,700,012)
- Field Administration ($2,455,662)
- Reimbursements to registered political parties, candidates and auditors ($3,657,376)

Central Administration

Throughout established democracies, a transition has occurred within the administration of electoral events. Initially, and for many decades, an election was a decentralized process administered mostly at the constituency level. Increasingly, however, elections are administered centrally. This creates efficiencies and also allows for greater consistency and integrity in the election process.

“Throughout established democracies, a transition has occurred within the administration of electoral events. Initially, and for many decades, an election was a decentralized process administered mostly at the constituency level. Increasingly, however, elections are administered centrally. This creates efficiencies and also allows for greater consistency and integrity in the election process.”

This category is inclusive of the costs of the oversight of the electoral event and other support costs which could not easily be assigned to any one constituency, or were services centrally provided to all constituencies.

Three Central Administration sub-categories which include significant costs were: Contractual Services; Communications, Advertising and Promotional Items; and Postage, Courier and Freight.

Contractual Services captures costs related to a variety of contractual relationships between Elections Saskatchewan and external contractors during the planning, preparation and delivery of the election. Of the approximately $3 million contained in this category, just under a third, about $950,000 consisted of short-term operational support to assist with the delivery of the election. A further $266,000 was spent on website development and support while a similar amount, just over $258,000 combined was spent on a 24-hour election call centre and an internal IT support desk.

The sub-category Communications, Advertising and Promotional Items includes a variety of costs related to public advertising and communication efforts, publishing of internal and external guides and manuals and the production of Voter Information Cards (VICs). Significant expenditures include $356,000 for writ period media placements; $344,000 for media planning and design/production of communication materials and $218,000 for design and production of VICs.

There were two significant costs within the Postage, Courier and Freight sub-category. The first was $659,000 for mailing out Voter Information Cards and voter registration letters to hundreds of thousands of households throughout the province. The second was $198,000 to ship containers of election supplies from Elections Saskatchewan's Regina warehouse to constituency returning offices throughout the province.

For summary details on Central Administration costs, see Chapter 3. Detailed information on this category can be found in Chapter 4.

Poll Officials

Costs within this category are directly attributable to the thousands of individuals who worked to directly administer Saskatchewan's 28th General Election. This includes those who worked election day and advance polls, as well as those who administered homebound, hospital and mobile voting. This category includes all deputy returning officers, poll clerks, information officers, registration officers, and other temporary election worker positions at voting locations. The rates of pay for these positions is established in The Election Act Regulations.

Every polling station in the province consists of two polling officials – a deputy returning officer and a poll clerk. By legislation, there must be one polling station, and therefore deputy returning officer and poll clerk, for every 300 voters in each constituency.⁵ Deputy returning officers, the poll officials responsible for issuing the ballot to voters and conducting the initial count at the close of voting, accounted for just over $1.07 million. Poll clerks, who assist the deputy returning officer and maintain the poll book, cost roughly $920,000, province-wide.

In certain locations where a number of polling stations were held in one physical location, a supervisory deputy returning officer may have been appointed to assist with the management and oversight of the location. Total compensation for all supervisory deputy returning officers came to just under $204,000.

“Every polling station in the province consists of two polling officials – a deputy returning officer and a poll clerk. By legislation, there must be one polling station, and therefore deputy returning officer and poll clerk, for every 300 voters in each constituency.”

Finally, there are other poll officials who may have been present in certain polling locations across the province. This includes information officers who assist voters as they enter and exit the polling location and ensure voting proceeds smoothly as well as registration officers, who assist voters who need to register in completing the required forms. Payment to these officials accounted for just over $608,000.

Summary information on payments made to poll officials across the province can be found in Chapter 3. For details on poll official costs for each constituency in the province, see Chapter 5.

Returning Office Staff

This category includes all payments made to returning officers, election clerks, automation coordinators, enumerators and other field constituency office staff. These are the individuals who were responsible for the implementation of the entire electoral process in 61 constituencies across the province – this includes accepting candidate nominations, training the poll officials covered in the previous category, securing polling locations, etc.

By legislation, the returning officer is responsible for many tasks within their constituency which are key to making the election a success. Payments made to returning officers over the course of the electoral cycle were just under $1.27 million.

Every constituency also has an election clerk who assists the returning officer with their work, and if necessary, can act in the returning officer's place. Total compensation for election clerks was $672,480.

The amount spent on enumerators for this most recent election was considerably less than what was spent in previous general elections due to the transition from a door-to-door enumeration methodology to a permanent register of voters as the source of election voters lists. The change in voter registration methods was the result of a legislative change that was implemented between the 27th and 28th general elections. For the 28th general election, $207,139 was spent on enumerators, mostly to target areas that analysis showed had very low levels of voter registration coverage or extremely high rates of population mobility. By comparison, Elections Saskatchewan reported spending $1.82 million on enumerators in its post-election report on the 2011 general election and $1.06 million during the 2007 general election.⁶

The transition to a permanent register of voters also resulted in significantly improved voter registration numbers, with 94.1 percent of eligible voters registered in 2016 compared to 76.7 percent in 2011. For more information on voter registration, refer to A Report on the Twenty-Eighth General Election, Volume I, Statement of Votes.⁷

“The amount spent on enumerators for this most recent election was considerably less than what was spent in previous general elections due to the transition from a door-to-door enumeration methodology to a permanent register of voters as the source of election voters lists.”

More information on returning office staff costs, including amounts paid to automation coordinators and other office staff, can be found in Chapter 3. Chapter 5 contains constituency-by-constituency breakdowns of returning office staff costs.

Field Administration

This category consists of expenses directly associated with administering the election in 61 constituencies across the province. This includes returning office rent and utilities, polling location rentals, furniture rentals, etc. It also includes the cost of printing ballots and other legislatively-required forms.

In total, the cost of renting space for 61 returning offices across the province was just under $656,000. Adding office furniture and equipment to these spaces, including computers and printers, was $378,000. Providing telephone and Internet to these spaces cost just over $101,000. Renting polling locations, from as far south as Coronach in the constituency of Wood River, to as far north as Uranium City in the constituency of Athabasca, cost $400,541.

For summary information on Field Administration costs, see Chapters 3.

⁶ Past election report can be found online at <http://www.elections.sk.ca/resource-centre/reports-publications>. As noted earlier in this chapter, the methodology of budgeting and expense tracking changed dramatically since the 2011 and 2007 general elections so these specific examples are provided for comparison purposes only.

Political Party Reimbursements – 1978 to 2016

Reimbursements to registered political parties, candidates and auditors

Registered Political Party Financial Reporting:

For the 28th general election, six political parties were legally recognized for the purpose of fielding candidates. These were:

- Green Party of Saskatchewan;
- New Democratic Party, Sask. Section;
- Progressive Conservative Party of Saskatchewan;
- Saskatchewan Liberal Association;
- Saskatchewan Party; and the
- Western Independence Party of Saskatchewan

Registered political parties are required to file an audited return of their election expenses within six months following polling day – a deadline of October 4, 2016 for the election held on April 4, 2016. Election expense returns for all six registered political parties were received by the deadline date. These expense returns had all been audited, as required by the Act.

Any registered political party that obtains 15 percent or more of the valid votes cast across the province, and whose chief official agent files a return of election expenses, is entitled to receive a reimbursement of 50 percent of its eligible election expenses. By legislation, each registered political party was entitled to spend $1,000,663.00 during the campaign. Therefore, the amount reimbursed to a qualifying party was half of its eligible election expenses, to a maximum of $500,331.50.

“Any registered political party that obtains 15 percent or more of the valid votes cast across the province, and whose chief official agent files a return of election expenses, is entitled to receive a reimbursement of 50 percent of its eligible election expenses.”

For the 28th general election, two registered political parties qualified for and received reimbursements. These were:

- New Democratic Party, Sask. Section - $426,222.03
- Saskatchewan Party - $414,596.45

A summary of the eligible expenses incurred by the six registered political parties, and the amounts paid with respect to publicly funded reimbursements, can be found in Chapter 7. Contributions made to political parties are not listed in the registered political party's return of election expenses, but they are set out in each registered political party's annual fiscal period return.⁸ These annual fiscal period returns, which list contributions, are published on the Elections Saskatchewan website.

Comparative summary data for election expenses incurred by registered political parties in 2016, and in previous general elections going back to 1978, is contained in Chapter 10.

The graph on the previous page shows publicly funded reimbursements to registered political parties made following each of the 10 general elections covered within this period. 1978 was the first year that registered political parties became eligible for election expense reimbursement.

Candidate Financial Reporting:

Candidates are required to file an audited candidate's return of their election expenses within three months after polling day – for this election that deadline was July 4, 2016. Candidate returns are posted on the Elections Saskatchewan website immediately upon being received with an "as filed" status. After being reviewed, the "as filed" status document is replaced with one marked "as reviewed."

The 2016 general election saw 268 candidate names appear on ballots, which set a record for the greatest number of candidate nominations in a Saskatchewan provincial election.

Registered Political Party	# of Candidates
Green Party of Saskatchewan	58
New Democratic Party, Sask. Section	61*
Progressive Conservative Party of Saskatchewan	18
Saskatchewan Liberal Association	61
Saskatchewan Party	61
Western Independence Party of Saskatchewan	4
Independent	5
Total	268

* Although only 61 N.D.P. candidates appeared on the ballot for the general election, there were in fact 62 officially nominated candidates for the party. Terry Bell was officially nominated in the constituency of Regina Walsh Acres, but withdrew and was replaced by another candidate before the nomination period closed.

"For the 28th general election, two registered political parties qualified for and received reimbursements. These were:

- New Democratic Party, Sask. Section - $426,222.03
 - Saskatchewan Party - $414,596.45"

Constituencies Where Standard Expense Limits Were Increased Due to Number of Registered Voters

Constituency	Number of Registered Voters	Amount per Voter	Calculated Expense Limit	Over Standard Limit
Cumberland	13,326	$ 7.71	$ 102,743	$ 25,355
Martensville-Warman	15,066	$ 3.88	$ 58,456	$ 416
Regina Pasqua	15,078	$ 3.88	$ 58,503	$ 460
Regina Rochdale	15,744	$ 3.88	$ 61,087	$ 3,044
Saskatoon Stonebridge-Dakota	15,215	$ 3.88	$ 59,034	$ 991
Saskatoon Willowgrove	15,295	$ 3.88	$ 59,345	$ 1,302

By legislation, each candidate is required to appoint a business manager, who has responsibility for reporting their candidate's contributions received and campaign expenses incurred. In addition, each candidate is also required to appoint an auditor who is required to review and report on the election expense return the business manager prepares before it is submitted to Elections Saskatchewan. Detailed candidate information, including the occupation, community and name of each candidate's business manager, was published in A Report on the Twenty-Eighth General Election, Volume I, Statement of Votes.

Candidates are limited in the amount of money that they can spend in their respective campaigns by the legislated formula found in section 252 of The Election Act, 1996.

- A candidate in the 59 southern constituencies was permitted to spend the larger sum of (a) $58,043.00 or (b) the amount obtained by multiplying the number of registered voters in the constituency by $3.88.
- A candidate in either of the two northern constituencies (Athabasca or Cumberland) was permitted to spend the larger sum of (a) $77,388.00 or (b) the amount obtained by multiplying the number of registered voters in the constituency by $7.71.

During the 2016 general election, standard expense limits were exceeded in six constituencies due to a high number of registered voters, as shown in the table above.

Any candidate that obtains 15 percent or more of the total valid votes cast in their constituency, is entitled to receive a public reimbursement of 60 percent of their eligible election expenses. This reimbursement is dependent on their business manager filing an audited return of the candidate's election expenses.

"Any candidate that obtains 15 percent or more of the total valid votes cast in their constituency, is entitled to receive a public reimbursement of 60 percent of their eligible election expenses."

For the April 4, 2016 election, there were 115 candidates who qualified for reimbursement, receiving a total of $2,629,806.84. The breakdown of this amount is as follows:

- New Democratic Party, Sask. Section (53 candidates qualified for reimbursement) - $1,140,969.19
- Saskatchewan Party (61 candidates qualified for reimbursement) - $1,470,890.94
- Independent (1 independent candidate qualified for reimbursement) - $ 17,946.71

The graph below shows the total publicly funded reimbursements made to all candidates after each general election from 1978 through 2016.

For more details on reimbursements to candidates, see Chapters 9 and 11.

Auditors:

Every registered political party and candidate must appoint an auditor.

When reviewing the spending and financial records of a candidate or party, the auditor must employ generally accepted accounting principles and generally accepted auditing standards. An auditor's duties involve a thorough examination of the accounting records of a candidate or party, permitting him or her to reach an opinion as to whether the return properly presents the transactions contained in the accounting records on which the return is based. It is required that the candidate's business manager or the party's chief official agent provide the information and explanations that are necessary to facilitate preparation of the auditor's report. The auditor is responsible for reporting any situations where he or she is suspicious or has reason to believe that proper accounting records were not kept by a candidate or party.

The cost of an auditor's account of a candidate or political party's election expense return is reimbursable regardless of whether the candidate/party otherwise qualifies for reimbursement. The maximum reimbursement for auditing services for a candidate's or party's return was $964.00 and $2,969.00 respectively.

The total amount paid for auditor reimbursement for both candidates and registered political parties was $186,751. To see auditor reimbursements for each constituency, see Chapter 6.

Candidate Reimbursements – 1978 to 2016

Orders and Authorizations of the Chief Electoral Officer

The Election Act, 1996, permits the Chief Electoral Officer to grant extensions to the Act's financial reporting requirements for election purposes, for individual candidates. However, if an exception is made, subsection 286(1) of the Act mandates that the Chief Electoral Officer report on it.

There are many reasons why the business manager of a candidate may request, and be granted, an extension. These include delays in invoicing, an audit which takes an extended amount of time, illness, etc. The Chief Electoral Officer does not grant an extension without a valid reason.

During the close out of the 2016 general election, and within the provisions of section 263 of the Act, the Chief Electoral Officer granted 148 orders for individual extensions of time to prepare and file the candidate's return of election expenses. This was a significant increase from the 84 orders issued following the 2011 general election. See Chapter 7 for further information regarding which candidates were provided time extensions.

Contents of this Report

The remainder of this Statement of Expenditures provides detailed financial information on all costs related to Saskatchewan's 28th General Election. Throughout the report, certain numbers have been rounded to whole dollars (i.e. are not inclusive of cents) within the tables, but all totals within the document have been presented inclusive of cents and without rounding.

Chapter 3 shows the total cost of the 2016 provincial election "at a glance," including expenses related to Central Administration, Field/Constituency expenses (inclusive of Field Administration, Returning Office Staff and Poll Officials) and all expense reimbursements that were made to political entities and their auditors.

Chapter 4 offers an overview of the Central Administration sub-category and details on the various costs captured therein.

Chapter 5 provides a breakdown of constituency election administration expenditures by major category. Chapter 6 provides more detailed information on these expenses on a constituency-by-constituency basis. It shows how much was spent in each constituency on poll officials, administrative costs, as well as candidate-related reimbursements.

A summary table showing the orders and authorizations granted by the Chief Electoral Officer regarding extensions to candidate financial filing deadlines is provided in Chapter 7.

Chapter 8 provides a summary table of expenses incurred by, and reimbursements paid to, registered political parties that contested the 28th general election. Chapter 9 shows a summary of contributions received, expenses incurred and reimbursements paid to each candidate for the 2016 Saskatchewan election, organized in constituency name order.

A comparative summary of the expenses incurred by, and public reimbursements paid to, registered political parties following the provincial general elections held between from 1975 and 2016 is included as Chapter 10. Chapter 11 offers a comparative summary of the contributions received, expenses incurred and public reimbursements paid to election candidates by party for all general elections held between 1975 and 2016.

Finally, Chapter 12 provides a comparative summary of the numbers of candidates nominated, candidate returns filed and candidates reimbursed in provincial elections that have occurred between 1991 and 2016.

CENTRAL ADMINISTRATION OVERVIEW

This chapter provides details on the costs which have been classified within the Central Administration category. This category is inclusive of the costs of the oversight of the electoral event as well as support costs which could not be easily assigned to any one constituency and services which were centrally provided to all constituencies.

Throughout established democracies around the world, a transition has occurred within the administration of electoral events. Gradually the administration of elections has become more centralized for the purposes of consistency, efficiency and integrity. In Saskatchewan's case, which held its first election in December 1905, this reflected the reality of the times and the geography of the province – it was simply not possible for a central body in the provincial capital to effectively work with the scattered constituencies.

This meant that for many years in Saskatchewan, elections were administered, for the most part, at the constituency level. This reality can be seen by a detailed reading of The Election Act, 1996 which contains many clauses and sections which have not been substantially changed in many years and which assign specific powers and responsibilities to constituency returning officers and not to the central office of the Chief Electoral Officer. For example, section 261 requires every candidate to file their election expenses with the returning officer who must then publish a summary of this return in a constituency newspaper. The returning officer must also, by legislation, make copies of these returns available for public inspection for at least six months following the election “during normal office hours of the returning officer.” In reality, the returning officer has no office hours following the return to the writ (or even an office) and all of these tasks are managed centrally. This results in a consistent approach across the province.

The need for consistency across a jurisdiction is one key reason for the worldwide trend of centralized election management. It is essential that, as much as possible, every voter, candidate and registered political party is treated the same throughout the province. Centralization also brings about certain efficiencies, such as from bulk purchasing and standardized approach to rules and expenses.

Finally, recent elections throughout Canada have brought about a new reason for centralization – an increased focus on electoral integrity. Through increased centralization, an election management body can ensure that equipment, processes and training used throughout its jurisdiction are the same. This results in integrity throughout the electoral system and helps maintain high levels of confidence in an election management body such as Elections Saskatchewan.

The sub-categories of expenses within the Central Administration category are shown in the table below. Some of these sub-categories may seem self-explanatory but others require further breakdown. As mentioned above, these expenses include costs related to the central oversight of the event but also costs which may relate more directly to the administration of the election at the field level but which could not easily or appropriately be assigned at the constituency level.

“The need for consistency across a jurisdiction is one key reason for the worldwide trend of centralized election management. It is essential that, as much as possible, every voter, candidate and registered political party is treated the same throughout the province.”

Staffing - $1,697,990

The staffing sub-category includes salary expenses for temporary workers related to the central operations of Elections Saskatchewan. This includes term employees brought in to assist the Operations service line with the direct implementation of the election as well as additional communications resources to assist with monitoring social media and to answer inquiries from the public. This sub-category also includes the cost of staffing three Regina-based service desks – one for operational questions related to election administration, another for financial questions and a third dedicated to IT and technology-related questions and issues.

Payroll Taxes/Service Fees - $240,015

This sub-category consists primarily of about $174,000 in payroll taxes (i.e. Canada Pension Plan and Employment Insurance) for temporary workers. It also includes roughly $66,000 in payroll processing fees for field leadership team members and poll officials.

Field/Constituency Supervisors - $659,635

Throughout the electoral cycle, supervisory returning officers (SROs) provide valuable local oversight in their provincial zone of responsibility. During the 28th General Election, nine SROs were employed, each overseeing between seven and eight constituencies, providing a crucial link between the field-level returning officers and head office. SROs also assist with training returning officers and election clerks, who in turn train thousands of poll officials. As the election approached, a number of deputy and assistant SROs were recruited to offer further assistance and oversight in the field.

Costs within this sub-category are related to payment for hours worked as well as travel costs for all of these individuals.

Contractual Services - $3,001,048

The Contractual Services sub-category captures costs related to a variety of contractual relationships between Elections Saskatchewan and external contractors during the planning, preparation and delivery of the election. These contracts relate to all aspects of the organization and all aspects of election preparation.

Of the approximately $3 million contained in this category, just under a third, about $950,000 consisted of short-term operational support to assist with the delivery of the election. Another $185,000 was spent on general head office and executive support. Travel and accommodation costs for these resources came to just over $136,000.

Approximately $266,000 was spent on website development and support to help ensure that the Elections Saskatchewan website, the main source of results for many on election night, was responsive on a variety of devices and was able to handle an influx of visitors after the polls closed. In order to provide quick, easy to access service to voters, a 24-hour election call centre was established at a cost of just over $185,000. Additional support and technology for the three internal call centres set up at head office to provide support to the field cost just under $73,000.

A contract with CIVIX to provide the “Student Vote” program throughout province schools came to $100,000. More than 270 schools and nearly 20,000 students participated in the program. Voter registration efforts on post-secondary campuses throughout Saskatchewan cost roughly $18,000.

A great number of relatively small contracts were signed with vendors throughout the province. The sum total of all contracts less than $10,000 came out to about $224,000.

System Development - $934,450

The expenses found within this sub-category relate primarily to the development and maintenance of two Elections Saskatchewan systems – ELMS and ESPREE.

ELMS (short for Election Management System) was a custom developed web application designed to assist candidate business managers with their legislated responsibilities. ELMS allows business managers to:

- Enter and track their candidate's campaign contributions and expenses;
- Generate and print the Candidate Election Return; and
- Print supporting forms.

Costs related to the development of ELMS were $434,650 for the electoral cycle. Moving forward, ELMS will continue to be used, and if possible, expanded with additional capabilities.

ESPREE is Elections Saskatchewan's legacy election management software. At present, ESPREE is used for the administration of many of the operational tasks related to the delivery of the election. This includes managing candidate information, polling place details and the entering and tracking of election night results. Maintenance and development of ESPREE cost $499,800 over the course of the past electoral cycle.

Providing ballot paper for 61 constituencies cost approximately $123,000.

Communications, Advertising & Promotional Items - $2,150,022

This sub-category relates to a variety of items related to communication activities in the lead up to, during and after the general election. Significant expenditures include $356,000 for writ period media placements; $344,000 for media planning and design/production of communication materials and $218,000 for design and production of voter information cards. While some of the advertising captured within this sub-category was of a general informational nature designed to inform voters as to where, how and when to vote, legislation also mandates that Elections Saskatchewan place a number of advertisements in provincial newspapers. These are:

- the right for voters to review the voters list and to apply for revisions;
- the name, political affiliation, address and other key pieces of information about candidates for election; and
- a summary of each candidate's election expense return.

Just over $136,000 was spent on the design and production of election-related manuals, guides, etc. Training videos on a variety of topics including accessibility, privacy, etc. cost $87,000. Well before the general election, about $131,000 was spent on enumeration-related advertising to advise voters of the registration process.

Office Rent, Furniture & Equipment - $479,912

A significant portion, about $220,000, of the costs in this sub-category relate to furniture rentals for returning offices which were not allocated to any specific constituency. Another significant expenditure was about $71,000 to rent additional space at Elections Saskatchewan's Regina head office – this space was used to host internal call centres as well as other support staff.

Computer Hardware/Software, Website & Subscriptions - $253,374

Within this sub-category, roughly $105,000 was spent on software licenses for temporary head office and field staff. Another $78,000 was incurred for website maintenance costs.

Travel/Business - $410,687

The Travel/Business sub-category includes a variety of expenses incurred over the four-year electoral cycle. Many relate back to training events that were held for Elections Saskatchewan's field leadership team members.

Approximately $227,000 was spent on accommodation for in-province training events while meals served at these events came to just over $152,000. Other costs captured within this category include mileage expenses and rental cars.

Postage, Courier & Freight - $970,943

This sub-category includes two significant items. Approximately $658,000 was spent on postage for voter information cards and voter information letters. Shipping election materials to and from Elections Saskatchewan's Regina warehouse and constituency returning offices cost roughly $198,000.

Office Supplies - $329,880

For the duration of the writ period, Elections Saskatchewan operated 61 fully-functioning returning offices in all corners of the province. Provisioning these offices with supplies is not a small task. As well every polling location in the province requires a small amount of office supplies to ensure that it can effectively serve voters. For example, just under $2,200 was spent on pencil sharpeners for polling locations throughout the province. Wherever possible, supplies are used for future electoral events. The majority of these office supplies are purchased centrally and then shipped to the constituencies with other election materials.

In addition to traditional office supplies, the $329,880 in this sub-category also includes the cost of ballot paper (roughly $123,000), enumeration booklets ($38,000) and ballot boxes and voting privacy screens ($24,000).

Printing – Forms - $491,372

Elections in Saskatchewan, and throughout most of Canada, are still an intensely paper-based process. This requires that many forms, manuals and other items be printed. For the electoral cycle, just under $500,000 in specific printing costs were identified.

A significant portion of this, $158,000, was for the production of an enumeration mailout in May 2015. Printing of legislatively-required election proclamations cost roughly $105,000 while production of a variety of material for election official training cost about $95,000.

The remainder of the costs in this category relate to the printing of poll books, constituency maps, name tags, brochures, etc.

Telephone/Internet - $22,523

The majority of the costs within this sub-category relate to the establishment of the internal call centres that were set up to assist election workers throughout the writ period. This includes long distance and Internet charges as well as cell phone costs.

$198,000

Cost to ship election materials from Elections Saskatchewan's Regina warehouse to 61 constituency offices and back following the end of the writ period
